I was foolish and afraid. I wanted to pursue my studies, I wanted to be left in peace, so I let that flend prey upon my fears. But now now I feel that the burden has rolled away. I shall tell you my story, and afterward I will do great things yet, great things for science, great things for the world."

the world."

They listened to him, spellbound.
Only Lenera stood a little apart with a faint frown upon her forehead. Shetouched Quest on the shoulder.

"Mr. Quest," she murmured, "he is lying!"

Quest turned his head. His lips scarcely, moved.
"What do you mean?" he whis-"What do you mean?" he whis-pered.
"He is lying!" Lenora insisted. "I tell you there's another creature there, something we don't understand. Let me bring the electro-thought transference apparatus; let us read his mind. If I am wrong, I will go down on my knees and beg for for-giveness."

knowledge has been my heaven. If I watched her. Slowly his face changed. I had been a wise man, I would have the benevolence faded away, his trid myself of this hideous burden, but teeth for a moment showed in something which was almost a snari. The pursue my studies, I wanted to be "You believe me?" he cried, turning Tou believe me? he cried, turning to Quest. "You are not going to try that horrible thing on me—Professor Lord Ashleigh? I am all broken up. I am not fit for it. Look at my hands, how they shake."
